DEATH'S DOINGS.

HUGHES.

William J. Hughes, aged 58 years, after an illness of two years, suffering from the effects of paralysis, passed to his reward on May 29th, 1907, leaving a wife and eight children, viz: Mrs. Lewis Adams, Carl, Lily, Pa., Chas. W. Hornell, N. Y., Edward, Elizabeth, Richard, Margaret, Wm. Rue, of city; and one brother, E. J. Hughes, of Lilly, Pa., and two sisters—Mrs. Margaret Nissley, Altoona, Pa., and Mrs. Frederick, East Liverpool, O., all of whom were present at the funeral including Mrs. E. J. Hughes, of Lilly, Pa., and Mr. Nissley, of Altoona, Pa., and Mrs. Carl Hughes, Lilly, Pa., also three half brothers, who were not present at the funeral.

The funeral was held at Free Methodist Church, on Saturday at 2:30 p. m., the services being conducted by Rev. Bennett, assisted by the Presiding Elder, Rev. Hill, of Bradford. The services were largely attended.

Deceased came to Emporium in 1870 from Ebensburg, Pa., and has always been an industrious citizen and farmer, rearing a large family. He was for many years active in chnrch work and often traveled miles to minister to the afflicted when hardly able himself to leave his home. The afflicted family, while they will find the loss hard to become reconciled to, will look with pride to his consistent life work.

CLOSE.

The funeral of Mr. Edward F. Close, which took place from his late home at Howard Siding was one of the largest ever held on West Creek. Mr. Close was born at Lyons, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1842. He came to this county early in Sept. 1863. When the civil war began, Mr. Close returned to his native state and home city, to enlist, and served his country as a soldier three years. He enlisted twice, the last time in Company E, 111th New York Infantry and was honorably discharged near Alexandria, Va., June 4, 1865.

Mr. Close was married to Miss Maria Pearsall, Sept. 19, 1865; they spent 12 years of their early life in the state of Mich., returning to Cameron county in 1878. From this happy union one son and five daughters together with their mother survive. It can be truly said of this man "he was not for God took him." He was a devoted husband, a kind father, a desirable neighbor, and a christian gentleman. In his early life he united with the M. E. Church and as the years advanced his life became more and more enriched in the knowledge of God, and fruitful in all christian graces.

DAY.

Seldom, if ever, has the PRESS been called upon to chronicle the death of a citizen more universally respected than was our old time-friend and citizen, John Day, Sr., at the remarkable age of 84 years, eight months and one day—his death having taken place, at 8:30 p m., Thursday, May 30th, 1907, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Helen Metzger, on Fifth street.

Deceased came to Emporium in 1866, as Supt. of the tannery firm of Hamilton, Martin & Co., in which firm he held an interest. He continued to have charge of this company's interests here until after the holdings passed to the Elk Tanning Co., when he retired to private life, making his home with his children. His life was an eventful one, active and forceful. A short time ago he handed his son John H., a paper which we are permitted to copy:

"OBITUARY OF JOHN DAY, WRITTEN BY HIS OWN HAND.

I was born Sept. 29, 1822. For the first eighteen years of my life I was a farmers' boy. The next ten a school teacher. The next sixteen an attorney-at-law. The next thirty a business man; since then I have lived a retired life.

JOHN DAY."

Deceased leaves six children, viz: Geo. L., Helen M. Metzger, Herbert, John H., city; Fannie M. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Frank F. city. His wife died in 1870. Mr. Day has one brother living, R. L. Day, aged 78 years, who resides at Webster, Mass.

THE FUNERAL

The funeral services were held at Presbyterian Church last Sabbath afternoon and was very largely attended by are citizens, all eager to pay a last mark of respect to an upright citizen and consistent christian. Dr. Johnston, the Pastor, delivered a very able discourse. The singing by a large choir was admirably rendered

AS WE KNEW HIM

The PRESS in looking back over the forty years that we knew the deceased have many, very many, kind remembrances of his kindness and good cheer. We always delighted to have him call for a visit or talk for we were sure to learn something. While a very conservative man Mr. Day always had the greatest desire for the material advancement of Emporium and was ever ready to stand his share of expense. In business he was honest to the cent and never knowingly wronged any person. Positive, exact and emphatic in every question—business, religious or political. Politically he was of the Charles Summer stripe and seldom, if ever crossed the line to assist the enemy of these sentiments expounded by the old school statesmen. Mr. Day in 1882 was the Republican nominee for member of Assembly but failed of election by fifty-four votes and often laughingly referred to his campaign mistakes. He would not allow anything contrary to his ideas of right to be done even to secure his election. John Day was an honest man and leaves a shining monument for the youth to point to. Farewell, old friend.

Base Ball.

On Thursday last our people practically all, had a day off, and took occasion to visit the park and witness the base ball games between Emporium and Johnsonburg. The attendance was the largest of the season. The first game opened with Johnsonburg at the bat, and their half ended with a goose egg. The locals scored in their half and from that on were unable to count. It was evident from the opening of the second inning that it was an off day for the home team. Their batting was somewhat below their usual average and it seemed when they did hit the ball it landed safe in a fielder's mit, this and numerous errors at critical stages gave Johnsonburg the game 6 to 1. The boys from the paper city were more fortunate, their hits were landed more safely, and while the errors were numerous they were not made at times that would favor the home team. Our fans who had not seen the team play before this season were dissatisfied with the showing the home team made on this occasion. Overturf at third played his usual good game, as did Liston at first.

The second game was a repetition of the first. Hemphill, who had pitched the first game, started the second but was relieved by Weaver. Score 9 to 3 in Johnsonburg's favor.

Emporium team was defeated at Johnsonburg Tuesday by the score of 13 to 5.

St. Marys will play here on Saturday afternoon, June 8.

Automobile Accident.

On last Thursday afternoon a party of Ridgwayites, composed of Emil Carlson, E. H. Amory, Miss Nine Ravenscroft and Miss Gertrude Grant, met with quite an automobile accident while coming to Emporium. About one-fourth of a mile west of Howard Siding, the machine which was speeding at a rapid rate struck one of Shippen's mud holes, upsetting the auto, throwing the occupants down an embankment, Carlson, the chauffeur and one of the ladies being pinned under the wreck. Mr. Carlson had his left arm severely injured and his back was badly burned by the gasoline firing. The other occupants escaped with but slight injuries. Dr. DeLong was wired for and went to scene of the accident and brought the injured man to the New Warner. He was taken home on Sunday, yet very sore and in great pain—his left arm being paralyzed.

Our local "auto fiends" promptly relived the unfortunates by offering the use of their machines. It is a miracle that the ladies escaped injury.

THE LATE JOHN DAY, SR.

The Social Swim.

A crowd of merry young people assembled at the Emmanuel Reading Rooms, Monday evening, June 3rd, as guests of the C. B. C. Club, the occasion being a farewell given in honor of one of their number, Miss Florence Cleary. The guests were received by several of the club members and after wraps were disposed of, escorted to the hall above, which was tastily decorated with potted palms, tabourettes and center tables were spread with doilies, marked with an attractive monogram of the club and the cosy corners were invitingly arranged with a variety of cushions. The evening was enjoyed by a programme of dances arranged by the young ladies. During intermission a dainty luncheon was served, after which several songs were sang by all. The remaining part of the programme finished, all leaving indebted to the following young ladies for a most enjoyable time: Dorothy Nelson, Jennie Nystrom, Agnes Blumle, Mary Blumle, Anna Welsh and Irene Ritchie.

BY A GUEST

Memorial Day.

Decoration Day was appropriately observed in Emporium, large delegations coming from all sections of the county. The procession was the largest ever seen here. Newton-Wiley Cemetery was crowded with citizens, hundreds of Sunday school children being there. Congressman Chas F Barclay, in a few pleasant remarks, introduced Rev. W. P. Shriner, the orator of the day. The Rev. gentleman's oration was scholarly, eloquent and unique and highly pleasing to the vast gathering. The old veterans were out in large numbers, although their numbers are growing less. After the services at the cemetery the "old boys" were invited to the Post room, where the ladies of the Relief Corps had a bountiful supper prepared. Photographer W. G. Bair took a snap-shot picture of the old veterans. The day was a great success and all were proud of the occasion.

First Under Uniform Ballot.

The primary elections held throughout Pennsylvania, under the new law, was pulled off last Saturday, from 2 to 8 o'clock, p. m. In this county there was little contest, except for County Treasurer on the Republican side Mr. Henry Ludlam was the only Democratic candidate, although many of the organization democrats swore they would defeat his nomination, they laid down like lambs. On the Republican side there were many candidates, five, and they made an active fight for the nomination, but the horrible rainy day kept the vote down in the rural districts. The vote was canvassed yesterday with the following result:

Vote by Districts for Treasurer

Totals	124	162	190 28	116	24	73

Delegate to State Convention resulted in the unanimous election of Jos. S. Johnston, R., and John Cummings, D. Chairman Republican County Committee showed L. W. Gleason re elected without opposition, while the democrats elected Geo. P. Shafer, D., over B. Egan, D., by a vote of 39 to 37.

The plan of voting is fraught with many dangers, unless the election officers are compelled to refuse tickets to votrs known to be of the opposite political faith. Time may cure the law of defects, but the first trial was far from being an improvement over the old plan.

Mr. Howard made a remarkable contest and developed strength that was never dreamed of by the older men. In accordance with the pledge made by the principal candidates to support the successful candidate it is their duty to cordially support Farmer Howard. Republicans, attention! Forward.

Accident at Huntley.

As night watchman Giardino Angelo was coming up the P. R. R. tracks from Huntley station about eight o'clock Monday morning he stepped off of the east bound track to get out of the way of an east bound freight and walked directly in front of a west bound train. He was struck and knocked about twenty feet to the side of the track. The injured man was taken to Driftwood on a hand car, where Dr. Corbett attended him. He was painfully but not seriously injured. Owing to a cot bed which he was carrying on his back the force of the blow was reduced. He was taken back to Huntley after being cared for and is resting comfortably as can be expected.

Medical Education.

The changes of the past 25 years in medical education have been nothing short of a revolution, and yet at a conference of medical educators in Chicago it was stated by one delegate that three-fourths of the graduates were unfit to practice medicine. The condition of medical education in this country 30 years ago was almost beyond belief. There were medical colleges in Chicago that graduated two classes a year. In a single town in northern Illinois nine men were practicing medicine, of whom two had diplomas and the rest were druggists, ex-hospital stewards from the army and men who had taken one course of lectures. The immediate result of the enactment of the medical practice act was the departure of 1,400 practitioners from the state, some of whom completed their medical studies, but most of them practiced where there was not so much law. At a conference in Chicago the other day, says the Philadelphia Record, Dr. Means, chairman of the judicial council of the Association of American Medical Colleges, said that the average man admitted to practice was deficient in knowledge of bacteriology, chemistry, physiology and anatomy. Fifty-eight per cent. of the men in 25 states who fail at their final examination pass a few weeks later. "In the few days intervening where do they get their knowledge? They don't get it." They simply learn the answers to the questions, and the same questions are asked them at the re-examination. Evidently the reform of medical education, although much has been done, is not yet complete.

Encourage the Young Poet.

Every man, woman and child should write poetry. It is like boils, it prevents worse sickness. If there were more poets there would be fewer criminals. Poetry is in every man's blood. If he doesn't write it at some time or another during his life watch out for him. His wild oats are unsown; they will rot in his system and sour his nature. Write poetry, therefore, so long as there is a jingle in your soul, exclaims the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette. The man who would advise corking up poetry unwritten in a human heart would soon have all the world full of brain storms and the devil to pay. It's a great business, this poetry business. And the man who hasn't had his fling with love and dove and spring and wing and skies and eyes and true and you and girl and pearl and lips and sips and honey drips (inspected and guaranteed absolutely pure) is like the man who died aged 72 years without being hungry—he missed a lot of fun filling up.

A writer in an exchange has discovered that the greatest foe to beauty in man and woman is not errors in diet, lack of exercise, overwork or any of the things usually classed as enemies of good looks, but bad mental states—"anger, fever, jealousy, worry, irritability, want of trust in one's self and in the 'Great God.'" The young woman who wants to be beautiful may eat what she pleases and work long and hard, but if she will cultivate good nature, calmness, kindliness, gayety, she may develop the divine gift. Therefore cheer up, girls, says Indianapolis Star, be good and you will be lovely to behold and, of course, happy.

Several European shipping companies have determined to raise their freight rates to Rio Janeiro 20 per cent., states the Brazilian Review. It cites the fact that a steamer recently arrived there with a cargo, the freight on which was $2,800. The expenses of getting the same into the Rio Janeiro custom house amounted to $3,000, or more than the freight charges from Europe.

It will contain reproductions, in color, of Mr. Morgan's unrivaled collection of miniatures. Forty copies of the superb book will cost $2,500 each, and 40 more $1,250 each—$150,000 in all.

SURGEON'S MISTAKE

NOT VERY SERIOUS; HE ONLY CUT OFF THE WRONG LEG.

Inasmuch as Experimental Tinkering with the Tariff Might Also Prove to Be a Mistake the Wiser Plan Would Be Not to Cut Off Either Leg.

The New York Times makes bold to say that "if we reduced the tariff we should import more goods, and we should also export more goods." Import more we certainly should if our tariff rates were lowered, and more yet if we had no tariff at all. If to increase our imports be the main consideration, why have any tariff?

But does it follow that our exports would increase in equal ratio? And, if so, what sort of commodities would we more largely export than we now do? Certainly not manufactures, for, even though the American wage standard were to be reduced down to the foreign level—a proposition, by the way, which opens up a vista of grave consequences which no man can contemplate without a shudder of fear and dread—our lower priced goods would not be allowed to invade the markets of manufacturing countries. Corresponding wage reductions would inevitably occur in such countries. The workers in European mills and factories must somehow and at some wage be employed. Otherwise chaos comes again.

Not in foodstuffs could our exports greatly increase under a lower tariff or no tariff, for the reason that by so much as we should succeed in displacing production or in reducing wages in foreign countries, by so much we should reduce their ability to take and pay for our surplus food products.

No; it does not follow that greater exports go with greater imports. It was not so from 1893 to 1897. We are now exporting fully twice the quantity which we then exported.

Reduction of the tariff with a view to increasing competitive imports must of necessity break down the American wage rate. Nobody, we believe, disputes that. The free trader and the tariff "reformer" will tell you that wages are too high and ought to come down, but that lower cost of living will compensate for the cut in wages. This is like inflicting a stab and then pouring balsam into the open wound. The pain may be less, but the wound is still there, and it was not there before. The question, then, is whether it is wise to inflict the stab; whether for the mere pleasure of trying experiments in the treatment of wounds we should apply the knife.

The healthiest condition known to the history of human labor and production exists in the United States today. "I never made but one really serious mistake," said a great surgeon. "Was it attended with fatal consequences?" "Oh, no," was the reply; "I merely cut off the wrong leg." In the present case the wiser practice would seem to be not to cut off either leg. Let nature take its course. The American body politic requires no tariff surgery of any kind.

Not Quite Killed.

"Forty years of almost exclusive attention to domestic trade has killed our instinct for commerce across the seas."—N. Y. Evening Post.

Not exactly. The instinct appears to be very much alive. Forty years ago, in 1866, our exports were $348,859,522. In 1906 they were $1,798,107,955, an increase of 500 per cent. In 1866 our total foreign trade was $783,671,588; 40 years later it was $3,119,172,649, not counting trade with Porto Rico and Hawaii, which will bring the total to nearly $3,200,000,000—an increase of over 400 per cent. Forty years ago our imports were $434,812,060; 40 years later they were $1,321,064,694. All this would seem to indicate a considerable attention to foreign trade, and with a fair degree of success. It suggests that while taking good care of the domestic market and the internal trade our instinct for commerce across the seas has been far from killed. Our attention to internal trade has made us, alike per capita and in gross, the richest among all the nations. Foreign trade is a side issue; a good thing to have, but, in comparison, a minor consideration. "Foreign trade," said Andrew Carnegie, "is a braggart; domestic trade is the true king."

Mr. Root and Canada.

It is understood that as a basis for complete free trade between the United States and Canada Secretary Root has proposed the adoption by the Dominion of the American tariff schedules in their entirety, as against other countries, Great Britain included. Coming from any other than so lofty an official source the proposition would seem impracticable almost to the point of absurdity. The establishment of uniform tariff rates and their uniform enforcement would necessitate on Canada's part withdrawal from the British empire and political union with the United States. Such a merger would also involve the complete abandonment of Canada's industrial aspirations. Canada would spurn either of these proposals if considered separately; coupled together, as they would have to be, she would not entertain them for a moment. A little deeper study of the tariff question would serve to enlighten Secretary Root regarding many things that cannot be done.

WAGES AND THE TARIFF.

Some Reckless Admissions Made by Democratic Leader.

In a speech in congress the other day Hon. John Sharp Williams reviewed the coming of immigrants to this country, the swelling stream ever since colonial days. He said they came to better their condition; that there was a falling off in panic years, but that the rule was a steady inflow. He gave as one reason the higher wages paid in this country and said:

There never was a period from the time the pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock up to the adoption of the Constitution of the United States when wages for the blacksmith, the carpenter, for the skilled artisan and the unskilled labor in the field, were not about double what they were in Great Britain. No tariff, high tariff, low tariff—all sorts of tariff—it made no difference what the tariff on our statute books was, they came.

That is very reckless talk for a leader in congress. Can Mr. Williams explain why there was always a falling off in immigration when free trade was the rule in our country?

Without elaborating or going back beyond the memories of middle-aged men, it is enough to say that in 1893, 1894 and 1895, skilled laborers' wages fell 40 per cent.; common laborers' wages fell 30 per cent., and thousands and tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands of laborers, skilled and unskilled, were unable to find employment on any terms. This may not have applied to Mississippi, but it did apply to the entire northeast, north and west.

It is just as plain that if the tariff were struck down to-day a million of skilled laborers would be without work in a month, and in two months immigration would be cut down 60 per cent.—Salt Lake City Telegram.

JUST STAND PAT.

The Public Satisfied with the Present Tariff Policy.

The majority of the people of the country are well enough satisfied with our present tariff policy and do not demand or desire any change therein. So long as we are so prosperous that we are exporting three thousand millions of dollars in merchandise, etc., every year and also importing more than any other country in the world except Great Britain; so long as we are not able to get either laborers or supplies to meet all the demands of our prosperity, that neither men nor materials can be had to carry on the work which is wanting and waiting to be done, there is little use of talking about revising the tariff. The present congressional campaign will have to be won on a campaign of no apology for any Republican principle or policy. Unless we begin to admit that the tariff policy is wrong the Democrats will find the Republican party and Republican policies invulnerable and unassailable. If any loophole is given for Democratic success it will be the Republicans' own making, and will constitute an error as difficult of reparation as it will be foolish in its conception.—Salem (Ore.) Statesman.

The Editor and the Tailor.

It is a dull ass that will not mend his pace with beating. Let us suppose that the editor wants to buy a suit of clothes and that his tailor wants to advertise in the Mail. The tailor has doubled his prices. The editor protests. "Very well," says the tailor; "I will reduce my price 50 per cent. if you will reduce your advertising rates 50 per cent." But that isn't fair," says the editor. "You have doubled the price on your goods, while my advertising rates are the same that they were before. If I cut 50 per cent. in rates I shall be getting only half what I have been getting for my advertising, while if you cut 50 per cent. you will get precisely what you got before for the clothes." "It makes no difference," insists the tailor. "Those are my prices, and if you don't like them you can buy your clothes somewhere else." "That is precisely what I'm going to do," says the editor, "and you can advertise in some other paper if you can find anybody that is fool enough to let you double your rates on him and at the same time cut down his own rates one-half. Good-day, sir." Call the editor Uncle Sam, and the tailor Kaiser Wilhelm, and you have the German tariff situation precisely. Does the Mail see it yet?

Was Mrs. McKinley Laid to Rest in Westlawn.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Were Very Simple—President Roosevelt, Members of His Cabinet and Gov. Harris Attended.

Canton, O.—The body of Ida Saxton McKinley rests beside that of her distinguished husband in Westlawn cemetery. Her last words, "Oh, God, why should I longer wait—let me lie beside him," have been answered.

The funeral services held Wednesday at the McKinley home were extremely simple. Four songs were sung—the same that were sung at the funeral of President McKinley—and the service was the simple ritual of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The house on its Market and Louis street sides was roped off to restrain the crowds which thronged neighboring thoroughfares.

President Roosevelt arrived at 12:45 p. m. and was driven to the residence of Justice Day for luncheon. Among others at the table were Secretaries Root, Cortelyou and Wilson, Gov. Harris and ex-Gov. Herrick.

Immediately after the luncheon the president and party were driven to the McKinley home. The body in its black casket rested in the so-called "campaign office," in the identical spot where President McKinley's body lay after the Buffalo tragedy.

Flowers filled the room, while many more for which there was not room in the house were sent to the cemetery ahead of the cortege.

While the services were being conducted by Rev. Dr. Buxton, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, and Rev. Dr. Holmes, former pastor of the same church, all business and amusement in Canton stopped. Retail stores, schools and places of amusement both in the city and surrounding country were closed and the street cars in the vicinity of the McKinley home did not run. All along the route to Westlawn cemetery flags were at half-mast.

The pallbearers were: Judge Henry W. Harter, John C. Dueber, Joseph Biechele, Robert A. Cassidy and George B. Frease, who were honorary pallbearers at the funeral of President McKinley, and Austin Lynch, R. S. Shields and Judge C. C. Bow.

When the services in the cemetery were over the presidential party returned to the Baltimore & Ohio depot, where the train for Indianapolis was taken.

Despite a rumor of doubtful origin that Michael Czolgosz, brother of the assassin of President McKinley, would be in Canton Wednesday, the funeral of Mrs. McKinley and the visit of President Roosevelt passed off without incident of sinster note. Taking precaution against the one chance in a thousand that the rumor of Czolgosz's presence here was true, the local police, assisted by secret service men from Washington and Cleveland, exercised the utmost vigilance during the president's stay in the city.

No trace was found of Czolgosz, nor any anarchist, although three strangers to the city were held in the jail during the president's stay. There was nothing against them, however, and they were released last evening.

THE TREATY OF AMAPALA.

It Provides for Arbitration of Disputes Between Two Central American Republics.

Washington, D. C.—The state department on Wednesday received a translation of the treaty of peace negotiated at Amapala, Honduras, under which friendly relations were reestablished between Nicaragua and Salvador, following their estrangement over the conflict between the former and Honduras, when Salvador allied herself with the Honduran republic.

The treaty seems to be more far-reaching than had been supposed. It commits the republics to obligatory arbitration should trouble arise in the future, and in providing for a peace congress to be held at Corinto, Nicaragua, the five sister republics in Central America are invited to form a peace pact "governing commerce, navigation and any other questions that may be judged profitable to Central American interests."

It is believed here that the treaty would not have been negotiated except for the mediation of Philip Brown, American charge at the legations of Guatemala and Honduras. His good offices were highly appreciated.

The treaty stipulates that any difference that may arise in the future between Salvador and Nicaragua that might alter their good relations shall be adjusted by means of the obligatory arbitration of the presidents of the United States and of Mexico conjointly, who shall have the power in case of not arriving at an agreement, to name a third person whose decision shall be definite.

Two Boys Killed by an Explosion.

Terre Haute, Ind.—By the explosion of several hundred pounds of powder at the storage house of the Farnsworth mine near Sullivan, Wednesday, two boys were blown to pieces and three others were seriously hurt.

ASTONISHED THE BARBER.

Quietly entering a barber's shop, the stranger removed his hat and coat, and taking a card from his pocket wrote on it:

"I want to be shaved."

A barber stepping forward read the card, and, pointing to a chair, said to his brother artists:

"Deaf as a brass kettle and dumb as an oyster."

The man straightened himself out in the chair, when his manipulator began lathering his face.

"This cuss has a cheek like a stone wall," he said, when a general laugh followed.

"Stick a pin in him and see if he is entirely dumb," said another.

The victim remaining undisturbed, the following shots were fired at him by the delighted tonsorial artists:

"He needs a shampoo. His head is dirtier than a public-house doormat."

"Shave him with a stool-leg. Don't spoil your razor on that stubble."

"Gracious, what a guy! He'd make a good bird-frightener."

"He ought to rent that nose for a locomotive head-light," etc.

While all these complimentary allusions were flying about him the operation of shaving was finished, and the man arose and put on his coat, and then, turning to the astonished barber, said:

"How much for the shave and compliments?"

"I—I—I—I," gasped the astonished man, "oh, nothing — nothing — call again—excuse;" and as the stranger left the shop the discomfited barbers swore that they would never believe in a deaf and dumb man again until they had first fired a ten-pound cannon about his ears.

Not What He Wanted.

"I'm selling a new burglar alarm," said the gentlemanly agent. "Can I interest you in it? This contrivance will fix it so that everybody will be awakened the moment a burglar steps inside the house. It can't—"

"I don't want it. If you have any kind of a contrivance that will keep my wife from waking up when burglars break in, come around and I will talk business with you."—Chicago Record-Herald.

HOW THE TRANSFORMATION OF A TOWN WAS EFFECTED.

A STORY WITH A MORAL

One Public Spirited Citizen Who Realized the Big Possibilities and Cultivated the Field to Advantage.

Once upon a time there was a Man, who in his youth was reared upon a farm located near a Small Town of Great Promise. Two weeks in each year when he was not sawing wood, feeding the stock or picking potatoes, he was allowed to attend the little red schoolhouse in the town. By hard labor during the day, and persistently reading a few old books which were heirlooms in his family, and each week absorbing the intelligence contained in the Weekly Mirror, he, by the time he could mark down his age at 18 years, had accumulated sufficient knowledge to run away from home. He wandered to a large city and there his great muscular power assisted to gain for himself a position as Chief Scrubber in a large store. He had not acquired the cigarette habit, and his faithfulness to his scrubbing brush, and his unwillingness to know all about his employer's business, soon attracted the attention of the Old Man, and at the end of a year he was promoted to Head Rustler in the shipping department at the large salary of eight dollars a week.

His disregard for scooting when the closing time came, and his total lack of swelled head so pleased the Old Man that from time to time the ambitious youth was advanced until at the end of six years he was drawing the biggest salary paid by the house, and soon he was taken in as a member of the firm. Age and hard knocks and brushes with the business world developed in him marked business acumen. He forged to the front as a financier and a public-spirited citizen. As years passed he prospered. Early and late he was ever looking after his vast business interests. There were times that he longed to be again in the small home town. Often in his youth he dreamed of some day being chairman of the village board. Only once since parting from the old home had he returned, and then to find the town just the same only a little more delapidated, and in the weed-overgrown kirkyard the neglected graves of his good parents.

The advertising magnate will draw trade to the stores of our community just as the advertising of the catalogue houses is now drawing it away from the home store. The people are interested in the store news of this town. Will you not give it to them?

Strenuous business life and assidious attention to the accumulation of capital without vacation, caused him to suffer from what the doctors pronounced neurasthenia, and advised total rest from mental effort. The man had labored too diligently in amassing money. Residence in a quiet place was recommended and retirement from all commercial worries. The Great Merchant sold his vast interests to a combine, and after careful thought, concluded that he would seek rest and a renewal of health in the town where he at one time attended the little red schoolhouse, and where in childish imagination he would be powerful and famous by becoming chairman of the village board. Accordingly he retired from the city, purchased the old homestead where he was reared and picked potatoes, and also built a residence and became a Great Factor in the town. Time had made few changes in the landscape. Buildings and streets were the same, only showing the ravages of decay. The old stores were in possession of the descendants of the owners who conducted them when he was a boy. They were not doing the business that they should. One great innovation was the town had a railroad. All about was suggestive of peace. It was an ideal place for a man who desired to pass his declining days in contemplation of the hereafter. There, life was much like unto death. There was fresh air in abundance. All of nature lavishly spent its beauty over the country and the town, and even the weeds on the streets were allowed to spring up, bloom and reach maturity without interruption by the scythe or the sickle.

Within a year the Retired Business Man had regained much of his old-time spirit and health. Habits of activity and love of business impelled him to once again seek work that would keep his mind occupied. He loved the old town. He saw that it needed new life. He figured out that there were 600 farmers in the neighborhood. Each farmer surely spent $50 a month somewhere for supplies. This meant a total of $30,000 a month; $360,000 a year. Then the few hundred people in the town would add other thousands to the volume of business. Why not build a great store and supply the wants of the people? He would spend some money and build up the town. He bought half a block on which three of the stores stood. He erected a large brick building, and soon he had installed in it great stocks of goods. Other merchants in the town shook their heads. The Public-Spirited Man was certainly crazy. Farmers when they came to town looked up the big building with wonder. The Weekly Mirror had to send away for type to set up the page advertisement for the new store, and to get a new press for the printing of circulars and posters.

One month after the opening of the store the graveyard quietness of the town had passed away. Streets were lined with the teams and the wagons of the farmers. A new elevator for grain had been started. The railroad placed a new switch in the yard to accommodate the increased business. The son of the old town blacksmith reopened the old shop closed for years because of no trade. New life was rapidly being injected into the place.

There was an election. A lot of newcomers selected the Public Spirited Citizen for chairman of the town board. He was elected. In six months the streets were paved, an electric lighting plant was in operation, along with a water works. The Great Storekeeper had a way of doing things, and he did them. News of the activity of the town reached near-by villages, and the people came to see the Big Store and to buy goods. A cold storage plant in connection with a new commission house operated by friends of the Storepeeker, caused Farmers to bring in tons of butter and hundreds of thousands of eggs, and chickens and other produce. The transformation was quick from a Dead Town to a Lively Small City. A high school was established, new churches built, and some of the pious people were shocked to see an opera house erected. The Pan-Handle & Skedunk railroad, which for years had been running 20 miles from the town so changed its route as to have it on the main line, so the place had two railroads. Enterprising men who wanted to locate in a Live Town turned their eyes toward the place. Soon there was smoke from a half dozen big factories, and in five years after the Public-spirited Citizen had started his store his old home town has increased its population 1,000 per cent. It was no longer printed in little type on the maps, but in capital letters.

MORAL—Do not underestimate the possibilities of your community, or fail to develop them. No city was ever made great by its people buying goods elsewhere.

A BIG STRIKE

Of Sailors Paralyzes the Commerce of France.

117,000 MEN OUT.

The Tieup Is Practically Complete—Strike Is Result of Dissatisfaction Over a Pension Law.

Paris, France.—A general strike of sailors and others belonging to the French naval reserve began at almost all the ports of France at daylight Friday and threatens the complete paralysis of French commerce. The navigation companies are making energetic representations to the government, claiming that the movement is not directed against them and saying that unless it is settled immediately it will cause untold injury to French commerce.

The naval reserves comprise nearly the entire maritime population engaged in seafaring life and number about 117,000 men, of whom 25,000 are serving in the navy. In addition to practically all the sailors of the mercantile marine, most of the longshoremen belong to the naval reserves.

The strike was declared by the National Seamen's union because the government's new bill increasing pensions from $40.80 to $72.50 in the case of seamen and from $156 to $200 in the case of captains is regarded by the members of the union as inadequate.

ROOSEVELT AT LANSING.

The President Delivers Three Speeches in the Capital City of Michigan.

Lansing, Mich.—After a strenuous six hours in the state capital, during which he made three addresses and held a reception at the state capitol, President Roosevelt left at 4:20 o'clock Friday afternoon for Washington on the Lake Shore road.

At the agricultural college in the afternoon President Roosevelt spoke to about 25,000 people from a stand erected on a little knoll at the head of the campus.

The president concluded his second address in the state capitol about 11:15 o'clock and was driven with his party to the college, where J. L. Snyder, president of the institution, entertained them at luncheon. The great crowd before the speaking stand was held in check by a regiment of the national guard.

At the conclusion of the president's address the graduating class filed across the platform and the president presented them their diplomas. Honorary degrees were conferred upon a number of distinguished visitors.

A MEDAL OF HONOR.

It Is Awarded to a Brave Girl by Order of President Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C.—A medal of honor has been awarded to Miss Mary Guinan, of Middletown, N. Y., by President Roosevelt for distinguished daring in risking her own life to save that of John C. Runyon, an aged man who on December 19, 1906, was in imminent danger of being run down by an Erie railroad train.

Mr. Runyon, who is 74 years old, attempted to cross the tracks in front of an oncoming train, not observing that another train was approaching rapidly on an adjoining track from the opposite direction. He reached the spot between the two tracks before he realized his danger and then became bewildered by his apparent inability to avoid being run down.

Miss Guinan, who was standing at the crossing, realizing that his confusion might cost his life, sprang to his aid. She seized and held him firmly between the two trains as they rushed by. As soon as the trains had passed, she led the old man to the sidewalk.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Seasonable Merchandise Goes Into Distribution slowly.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Seasonable merchandise goes into distribution slowly, which causes accumulation of spring and summer dry goods and millinery in the hands of dealers and retards collections, while making operations for fall and winter much more conservative. At some points the last week of May brought pronounced improvement in commercial activity, but the holiday retarded recovery and progress is slow. Manufacturing plants are producing at full capacity in most industries, orders covering output far into the future, and more New England cotton mill employes have received advanced wages, making the change affect about 85,000 hands.

Current transactions in the iron and steel industry are of comparatively little significance owing to the enormous tonnage of business under contract.

LAWTON STATUE

AT INDIANAPOLIS IS UNVEILED IN THE PRESENCE OF A GREAT ASSEMBLAGE.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DELIVERS AN ADDRESS AT A MEMORIAL DAY CEREMONY.

Indianapolis, Ind.—President Roosevelt on Thursday delivered the principal address here at the unveiling of a monument to Gen. Henry W. Lawton. He discussed railway problems and incidentally paid a warm tribute to Oliver P. Morton, the war governor of Indiana.

The president arrived at 10:48 a. m. from Canton, accompanied by Vice President Fairbanks, and was driven to the Fairbanks home, where luncheon was served, after which he was escorted to the court house square by United States troops, 13 companies of the Indiana national guard, G. A. R. and other organizations. The parade route of two miles was lined with cheering crowds.

The streets surrounding the monument were packed with people for many squares. On the platform were Mrs. Lawton and her three daughters.

The program of exercises included an invocation by Rev. D. R. Lucas, an address by Gov. Hanly, music by the Seventh Regiment band, the reading of a poem dedicated to Gen. Lawton by James Whitcomb Riley, the introduction of the president by Gov Hanly and President Roosevelt's speech.

James Whitcomb Riley read his poem, "The Home Voyage," written in honor of Gen. Lawton's memory when the body was being brought home from the Philippines and the curtain covering the monument was withdrawn by Miss Frances Lawton, daughter of the dead general.

The Lawton monument is the result of the work of a commission formed in 1900, soon after the general's death in the Philippines. The sum of $6,000 was raised by popular subscription.

The monument stands on the court house grounds. The bronze figure is nine feet high, standing on a stone pedestal six feet in height.

Following the ceremonies Vice President Fairbanks addressed the crowd briefly.

A HOLIDAY ACCIDENT.

Seven People Killed and Seven Injured in a a Collision of Trolley Cars.

Elyria, O., June 1.—Seven persons went to death in a rear-end crash between two Cleveland, Southwestern & Columbus traction cars Thursday evening. Seven others are seriously injured. The motorman on the rear car is in jail here, charged with manslaughter.

The dead and injured were caught on the rear platform of the forward car. The buffer of the second car plowed through the vestibule when the first car stopped, and jammed passengers and wreckage into a mass that took 15 minutes to disentangle.

Scarcely one of the injured showed a mark above the knees and in almost every instance the victims lost one or both feet. The dead:

Henry M. Billings, 60, retired harnessmaker, Elyria.

W. C. Allen, 68, Lake Shore claim agent, Elyria.

Donald Sala, son of Rev. J. F. Sala, Elyria.

Edward O'Donnell, 62, Elyria.

Charles B. Porter, 24, clerk, Elyria.

Homer Allen, 17, Elyria.

Eunice W. Wurst, 14, Elyria.

The injured:

Marguerite Butler, 15, Elyria, one foot amputated, other heel crushed.

Mabel Dean, 15, South Amherst, school girl, both feet amputated.

Arthur Hoadley, both feet amputated.

Mrs. J. P. Sala, Elyria, one limb crushed and severe internal injuries; will die.

W. S. Avery, conductor of the first car, both feet amputated.

George W. Chamberlain, 30, Madison, O., compound fracture of both legs and may lose right foot.

A TROLLEY ROAD COMBINE.

The Schoepf Syndicate Will Control 700 Miles of Electric Railway in Ohio.

Columbus, O. — Ever since the incorporation, about two weeks ago, by the Schoepf interurban traction syndicate, of the Ohio Electric Railway Co., with a preliminary capital of $100,000, there has been considerable speculation in financial circles as to the exact plans of the syndicate.

As stated at the time of the incorporation of the new company, it will consist of a consolidation of the three separate interurban railway properties of the Schoepf syndicate in Ohio. These are the Cincinnati Northern Traction Co., better known as the Cincinnati, Dayton & Toledo, the Indiana, Columbus & Eastern and the Lima & Toledo traction companies. These three companies have about 700 miles of electric interurban and urban roads in operation.

The preliminary capital of the Ohio Electric Railway Co. is to be increased from $100,000 to $16,000,000. This will be divided into $8,000,000 5 per cent. preferred and $8,000,000 common. There will be no bonds.

A Bull Is Sold for $11,500.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, June 1st, 1907.

A small but most exacting monopoly has been broken in the Department of Agriculture. At least the government thinks it has been broken and that about $300,000 a year will be saved to the government and incidentally to the public. The Department has for a number of years been buying a special patented label to mark the meat intended for export. This label was the design of a Washington man consisted of a little square of mosquito net filled with gelatine on which was printed the words "U S. Inspected and passed." It was rather a clever device, for it could be stuck on the meat that had been passed by the inspectors and though the gelatine would be worn off in a little while, the indelible ink that was in the label sunk into the meat and stayed indefinitely. The government paid only 65 cents per 1,000 for the tags, but there was a handsome profit in it for the company that made them, and so long as Dr. Salmon, who was the Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry and a large stockholder in the company, remained in the Department there could be nothing found to take the place of the gelatine label. There came near being a bad graft scandal over this little monopoly, but the discussion died down and Dr. Salmon resigned and went to South America to take charge of the Bureau of Animal Industry that was being established by the government of Argentina. Since his departure, one of the men in the bureau has devised a little rubber stamp that does the work just as well and that even with the vastly increased work required under the new meat inspection law, will cost the government only about $10,000 a year. It is, of course, a little curious that no device of this sort could ever be found to do the work while Dr. Salmon was in charge of the bureau, but then you know inventive genius works by fits and starts.

The Navy Department is arranging a race of torpedo boat destroyers from the Scotland Light Ship off Sandy Hook to the Virginia Capes, a distauce of 240 miles. Four of the big boats will take part and will make the entire run under forced draft. It is the biggest sporting event of the sort in which the Navy has ever indulged, and some sea records probably will be broken.

A Beautiful Wedding,

One of the prettiest weddings that ever occurred in Driftwood was solemnized yesterday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Methodist Episcopal church, when Miss Audra Viola Kreider became the wiie of Irvin Delano Winslow.

The church was decorated in pink and white, and music was furnished throughout the evening by Smead's orchestra of Renovo The guests began arriving early and were received and seated by the ushers. Messrs. C. F. Barner, of Renovo; T. J. McLane, of Johnsonburg; Al. F. Harris, of Reynoldsville; John M. Winslow, of Buffalo; and Jarvis Williams, of Reynoldsville.

Promptly at the time appointed, to the sweet strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, the bridal party entered the church, four of the five ushers leading, followed by Miss Ethelyn Winslow, sister of the groom, and Miss Effie Dunbar, of Canton, Pa., bridesmaids, Miss Rotha Kreider, sister of the bride, maid of honor, and Mr. Jarvis Williams; Miss Margaret Mix, of Hicks Run, and Master Lamont Kreider, flower bearers, and the bride on the arm of her father. They were met under a green arch at the alter rail by the grorm and his best man, Dr. B A. Beale, cousin of the bride. The bride was given away by her father and the beautiful ring ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal church was impressively performed by the pastor, Rev. Conway W. Dickson. Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered as the bridal party and guests filed out of the church.

The reception was held at the beautiful home of the bride's parents, followed by a sumptuous wedding dinner. The decorations at the residence were also pink and white, and during the evening the orchestra rendered in a very pleasing manner, selections from the opera "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Sand Dancer," "Zeona" waltzes, "Winnebago Intermezzo," "Ida Ho" wild western fantasia, "A Dream of Heaven"' "Napaneo" Indian novelty, "Americrn Beauty,' waltz; "Lustspiel" overture and the "Washington Grays March."

The bride and groom were given a hearty send of as they departed on the 10.58 p m., train for Philadelphia, Washington and the Jamestown exposition.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Kreider and is held in the highest esteem by all who know her, and the groom is the eldest son of Mrs. Milton Winslow, of Reynoldsville, and holds the responsible position of night yardmaster for the P. R. R. company at the place. He is is well known in Masonic circles and popular with the masses.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and valuable presents.

Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. M. G. Winslow, mother of the groom, and Miss Etheyn Winslow, of Reynoldsville; H. F. Winslow, Mrs. Lean Winslow, Mrs. Nellie Kerr, H. R. Burns, of DuBois; James K. Jordan and wife, Joseph and Rena Jordan, Miss Lechner, Emporium; Rev. and Mrs. Dickson and Mrs. Fulton, Sinnamahoning; Mrs. James D. Cunning and Mrs. James Marsh, Brookville; J. D. Williams and Al F. Harris, Reynoldsville; T. J. McLane, Johnsonburg; Mr. and Mrs. Van Ebert and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. McAllister, Ridgway; George Kline and Clyde Barner, Renovo; J. M. Winslow, Buffalo, and Arling R. Baker, Andover, N. Y.—Driftwood Gazette.

A prompt, pleasant, good remedy for coughs and colds, is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It is especially recommended for babies and children, but good for every member of the family. It contains no opiates and does not constipate. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

Death of Mrs. B. F. Rollah.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Rollah, whose critical illness was noted in these columns, who has been in poor health for several months past, died at the home on Main street last Friday afternoon, of anemia.

Mrs. Rollah was a daughter of James and Nancy Bennett and was born on February 25th, 1845, in Jefferson County, Pa., her parents being among the pioneers of that section. When she was a child her parents removed to Short Tract, in Livingston County, where she was reared and attended school. She was married to Samuel Bennett of that place, who died in 1865.

On September 23d, 1888, she was married to Mr. Benjamin F. Rollah, of Nunda, removing to Perry about 16 years ago. Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Leah Bennett Gilbert, of Emporium, Pa. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. A. Butterfield and Mrs. K. LaFoy, both of Bradford, Pa.

Mrs. Rollah was a woman of many lovable qualities as a neighbor and friend, and she will be missed from the church and social circles of which she has long been an interested and active member. Mrs. Rollah was a member of the First Baptist Church of this place, and of the Woman's Relief Corps. She was a consistant christian and an earnest worker. She did her part in aiding a good cause, with ready sympathy and helpfulness.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist Church last Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. T. G. Elswald, Members of the Woman's Relief Corps and of Sliver Lake Lodge, I. O. O. F., attended in a body. There were beautiful floral tributes from the organizations named as well as from individual friends.

The remains were taken to Nunda for interment.

The bereaved husband and family have the sincere sympathy of many friends in the loss of one who was universally esteemed.—Perry Record.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1907, by Story-Press Corporation.)

"We thought it was he and Mrs. Bruce that we saw last night," said MacArdel, pleasantly. "We were out enjoying the moonlight when they drove down the road."

"Didn't see nuthin' else, did ye?" asked Hoskins, in a confidential tone.

"Why, no!" laughed MacArdel. Why do you ask?"

"Wal," said Hoskins, drawing nearer and speaking seriously, "Jenks says th' ghosts wuz abaout agin' an' they went past him, daown th' road jest as he wuz a-turnin' into th' pike. His hoss give a jump as they went scootin' by, an' it threw him agin th' dash an' cut his hand some. He called me up teh git him a rag teh tie araound it an' he looked scared enough to ha' seen 20 ghosts."

"Was his hand badly hurt?" I asked.

"Nuthin' teh speak of," said Hoskins. "Jest a little nick along the side like he'd gouged a piece aouten it."

"See here, Hoskins!" said MacArdel sharply. "We didn't see any ghosts last night, and all your friend Jenks could have seen was ourselves, in our shirt-sleeves, walking back of the hedge by the river road. You remember how his horse jumped and ran, don't you, Ware?"

"Certainly," I replied, obediently. "We wondered what the trouble was, at the time."

"Now, then, Hoskins," continued MacArdel, looking at his watch and speaking rapidly. "Don't let Jenks hear a word about this business. He don't know that I had a trunk at the station, and, if we can get back here before he wakes up, he needn't even know that we've had his wagon."

"No fear of his wakin' up fur a good bit yet," grinned Hoskins. "He wuz so scared when he got in that he liked teh ha' finished a pint o' whisky 'fore I could stop him."

"So much the better" said MacArden, gathering up the reins. "Now, remember what I say, and keep this business to yourself. We'll have some fun with him before he gets through!"

We drove as rapidly as the tired beast could carry us, until we reached the gate leading into the stable grounds, when MacArdel pulled up suddenly and said:

"Let's dump the trunk in here. We can carry it up to the house after we get this horse and wagon back where they belong. No one will touch it here."

As soon as the trunk was on the ground by the side of the roadway, MacArdel dragged out the parcel from under the blankets and, opening it on the grass, began to examine the pieces minutely.

After a moment he straightened up and exclaimed:

"It's just as I thought. It's the same stuff that we found last night, and the scoundrel went back and got 'em all after we had gone to bed!"

CHAPTER XI.

The Ghosts Captured.

Replacing the parcel under the blankets in as nearly as possible the same condition and position as when we found it, we drove rapidly back to Hoskins' stable and were successful in safely housing the horse and wagon before Jenks put in his appearance.

"Now," said MacArdel, "all we have to do is to tip off that man at the station, and we can keep Jenks in the dark until we are ready to bring him up with a round turn."

We walked the short half mile to the railway and found no difficulty in bribing the fellow to silence concerning the trunk, laying stress on the alleged joke that we purposed practicing on the driver of the "express."

"You see," said MacArdel, as we strolled leisurely along the grassy roadside "the whole business is plain enough now. This Bruce woman started a ghost story when she first came here purely in a spirit of idle gabble and to impress the wondering natives with the knowledge of the homes of the nobility in England. Then, when her boy was killed, she tried to make trouble by again circulating these yarns and frightening the men off the place."

"Well," I replied, "she ought to be satisfied now, at any rate. Miss Carney gave her a good bit of money in a lump sum, and provided her with a comfortable house and a generous plot of land around it. I don't see what more she wants or what she hopes to gain, and, to tell the truth, I'm about as much in the dark as I was at first."

"Well, it's plain enough!" continued MacArdel. "You gave her the money in a lump sum, you say, so she has nothing more to expect in that direction. You'd have done better if you had given her an annuity instead, and kept the control of her funds in your own hands"

"We do, in a way," I returned. "We give her the use of the house and land, you know."

"That's where the whole trouble lies now!" exclaimed MacArdel. "Don't you see, Ware, she and this fellow, Jenks, are going to be married. She's got a good house and farm on the estate, and, just as they are about to settle down for better or for worse, you come along with a scheme to oust her, bag and baggage, and turn her place into golf links."

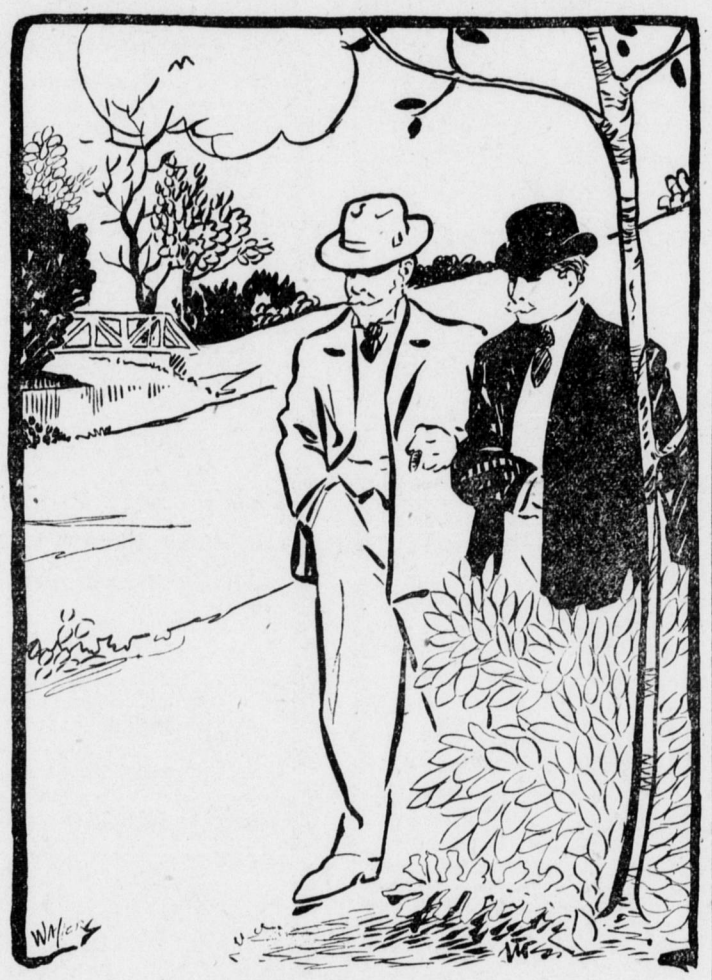
"What of it?" I replied. "We are going to provide for her elsewhere and she will be better off than she is now."

"You know that, but she doesn't," continued MacArdel, "and there may be other reasons why she does not want to move. This seems to be a pretty prosperous community, and apparently no one about her is especially anxious to have the house open."

"No reason why they should want it open," I said. "Practically all the servants are brought from the city and almost nothing is purchased in the village, so the natives don't derive any material benefit from the place."

"But they may when it's closed up," MacArdel insisted. "There's fruit and nuts and game and grass and timber and other things that can be picked up and never missed from one year's end to another when the house is unoccupied and no watchman or caretaker is about. I tell you, Ware, these people don't want the Carneys to come back, and they are playing this ghost game for all there is in it to frighten them away."

"They'll have a fine time doing it," I said. "Miss Carney isn't afraid of anything under the sun, and even if she returns before we are able to make out a case against them, she'll stay here and fight it out to the last."



"What's That Got to Do with It?"

"Hope she likes to do housework," said MacArdel."

"What's that got to do with it?" I snapped.

"Well," he returned, grinning, "she'll have to live here without servants until you get this business cleared up. She may be satisfied that there is nothing supernatural about these midnight visitations, but she won't get a servant to stay on the place while there's any hocus-pocus going on."

We were on our way back from the railway station, and, coming to the brow of the hill, we could look down across the valley and see the grim gray walls of the Carney mansion through the occasional openings in the foliage as it waved in the gentle morning breeze. To one side, and less than a mile away, was the Widow Bruce's cottage, and I pointed it out again to MacArdel.

"Let's go over there," he said, briefly. "I want to see her."

We tramped across the fields and over the fences of stone and brush, soiling our boots, tearing our clothing, and decorating ourselves with a generously distributed collection of burrs, which clung to our garments with a tenacity wonderful to believe.

A sharp knock at the cottage door was answered by a pleasant-faced, motherly appearing woman of about 45, who spoke with a marked English accent. MacArdel took the initiative and introduced us without delay.

"This is Mr. Ware," he said, "the attorney of the Carney estate, and I am his friend, Dr. MacArdel."

The widow bobbed up and down like a duck in a puddle and invited us into the house with a great show of ceremony.

"No, thank you," said MacArdel. "We won't come in. We've just been taking a morning stroll over the hills and we stopped to ask if you could do some washing for us. You know we've been stopping over at the house for a couple of days and the sheets and things are so musty that we thought we had better have some of them washed and aired out. We can get along to-night again, but if you could get some of the things back to us tomorrow we wish you would."

Mrs. Bruce was quite willing to do us this favor, and MacArdel told her to call for the things at six that evening, explaining that we would not return to the house until that hour.

As we left the cottage and wandered on down the hill, MacArdel said:

"She don't look half bad, after all. I confess I expected to see a very different sort of woman."

A moment later he muttered as if to himself: "We'll get the story out of her, though, or I'll miss my guess," beyond which sage remark he became absolutely uncommunicative on the entire subject.

We kept our word about returning to the place before evening, and, after lunching at Hoskins' and taking a row on the river in the afternoon, we arrived at the house a little after five to await the appearance of Mrs. Bruce. MacArdel had been far from talkative for some time, when suddenly he said:

"Ware, go back to the village right away! Send two or three meaningless telegrams to your office within an hour or so. Tell it around that unless you receive a reply before ten o'clock we will both have to return to town on the midnight train. I'll stay here and attend to the widow when she comes."

"Of course I won't get any reply if my messages are meaningless," I exclaimed, in amazement. "What on earth are you driving at?"

"Never mind about that," said MacArdel. "Just do as I tell you and be mighty careful to so word your message that no one can make any sense out of them, but be sure to send them to your own office. Then they'll look like cipher dispatches. Now, when ten o'clock comes and no answer, get hold of this fellow Jenks and make him drive up here along with you to get our things. He may pretend he's afraid, but he'll come willingly enough, especially if you offer to pay him well."

I did as I was told, and shortly after ten o'clock, Jenks and I drove up to the house and found MacArdel waiting for us on the veranda.

"Hello, Ware!" he called out, cheerily. "Didn't you get that message from town?"

"No," I responded shortly. "I wired them three times myself, but I couldn't get any reply."

"S'pose we'll have to get started tonight, then," said MacArdel. "The trunk is all ready. Will your horse stand, Jenks?"

"Will ef some one holds him," said Jenks, sullenly.

"All right," said MacArdel, ignoring the fellow's surly manner. "Get hold of his head, Ware, and Jenks and I will fetch the trunk."

The man clambered down from his seat, slowly and unwillingly, and as he did so the moonlight fell on his injured hand and illuminated the crudely applied bandage.

"Why, what's this, man?" exclaimed MacArdel, with interest. "Have you hurt yourself?"

"Nothin' but a scratch," replied Jenks, gruffly. "Got dragged agin a nail in th' barn last night."

"Let me look at it," said MacArdel. "I'm a doctor, you know," and he reached for the injured member and grasped it firmly at the wrist. An instant later Jenks went spinning through the air with MacArdel astride of his chest, holding him firmly to the ground.

"Wonderful what an hour a day at the gymnasium will do for a fellow," said MacArdel, when he had regained his breath. "There's a bit of rope there on the step Ware. Give it here and help me tie him. He's wriggling like the devil."

Four Hundred Women Enlisted as Soldiers in Civil War—Crimean War Gave Stimulus to Idea of Training Women Nurses—Florence Nightingale's Work—Interesting Facts About the Use of Term "Red Cross"—Widespread Misunderstanding as to Its Meaning.

(Copyright by J. B. Bowles.)

(Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee is the one woman in this country who has held a commission as an officer of the United States army. During the Spanish-American war, as director of the hospital corps organized by the Army and Navy chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which society she was vice-president-general, Dr. McGee was regularly appointed assistant surgeon of the army. During the war she was constantly on duty, visiting hospitals and battlefields in her capacity of director and supervisor of the army's trained nurses. She was prominently connected with the Japanese hospital service during the late war with Russia. Dr. McGee studied abroad at Cambridge and the University of Geneva. She was graduated from Columbia university of Washington in 1889. Later she took a special course at Johns Hopkins hospital. She is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.)

An army has always two parts. One part is the actual fighters, who work, suffer and die and at the end receive all the glory. The other part is those who provide for the fighters. They also work and suffer and die, but at the end they are ignored and afterward forgotten.

There are naturally very few women who have achieved glory in the fighting part of an army, though the amazons are well known and Semiramis, Zenobia and Jeanne d'Arc were commanders of armies. In former times, however, many a woman concealed her sex and took her place in the ranks as a man, though, from the nature of the case, not many of their names are known. Among those who enlisted in our revolutionary army were Deborah Sampson, Elizabeth Canning and Molly Macauley, and the last-named won the grade of sergeant before being discovered. It has been estimated that during our civil war no less than 400 women contrived by some means or other to enlist as soldiers. The most recent instance of fighting women was in the Transvaal war when many a burgher's wife handled a weapon at his side and many were taken prisoners, some of them being dressed as men. It is quite common for the royal women of Europe to-day to hold honorary commissions, generally as colonels, and although not expected to take command in time of actual war, they do wear their uniforms and ride with their troops on occasions of ceremony.

But, after all, the true story of women in armies relates to their part in providing and caring for the fighters. The present elaborate organization of armies is of comparatively recent growth, and originally the greater part of the cooking and of the nursing of soldiers was done by their hardy female relatives, who were as well able as themselves to bear the fatigues of the campaign. It is always easier to procure a new soldier than it is to cure one who is sick or wounded, and the humane medical corps, as one of the departments of an army, was a growth of the last century. During the middle ages the care of the sick was largely left to the great catholic order of knights and the orders of sisters who were affiliated with them. On the continent of Europe to-day, although a large majority of army nurses are men, yet in most countries there are a few sisters of catholic orders who not only continue to follow the troops in time of war, but who serve as head nurses in large army hospitals in time of peace.

About the beginning of the last century the idea of systematic training in the principles and practice of caring for the sick had its origin in Germany, where one of the earlier students of the art was Florence Nightingale. Like untold thousands of women before her, she went forth to the great battle with death in the hospitals, taking with her to the Crimea 38 women, of whom 18 were sisters of catholic or protestant orders. Other nurses joined her later. This war gave a great stimulus to the idea of training nurses, and it ultimately led to the introduction into the British army of a regular corps of women nurses. These "sisters," as they are called, are of course graduates of hospital training schools and their work consists essentially in the supervision of the nursing in large hospitals where the details are carried out by men enlisted for the purpose. In some respects the English system is well organized, as the rules are explicit regarding increase of pay with length of service, with provision for retirement and pensions. The most important post in this service is that of woman superintendent of Netley hospital, there being no woman at the head of all the nurses. There exists also an independent Indian nursing service of secular "sisters."

At the outbreak of the South African war the number of English sisters was fixed at 79, of whom 63 were employed in the British isles and 16 at Gibraltar, Malta and Egypt. In addition to this small number provided for peace times there was a corps of reserve sisters, although appointments to it were unfortunately not under the control of the war office. As the nursing sisters of the reserves numbered only 93, hasty appointments were made, and some women who were entirely without knowledge of a nurse's duties succeeded in obtaining appointments. Of course the trained nurses who were sent to the Transvaal worked nobly and well, though the investigation of army hospitals has shown a most distressing insufficiency in their number.

The United States is looked to as a country whose system of women nurses may, in many respects, be used as an example.

Our nurse corps is a matter of quite recent growth. There were, of course, a large number of women employed during the civil war, most of them appointed by Miss Dorothea Lynde Dix, who was then superintendent of women nurses, but their services, as well as the work of the helpers who held no regular positions, came to an end at the close of the war. A vast amount of good was done by these women individually, but there was no lasting effect on the army itself.

In our country, with its prevailing independence, army assistance may be rendered by any one who chooses to offer it and no organizations are recognized as those through which alone such assistance will be received. It is true that there was before and during the Spanish war a committee acting under the name of the "American National Red Cross," which was allied with the international committee, but it had no exclusive recognition from our government, nor had it any organization as a general society.

Nothing I Ate Agreed With Me.

"I suffered with stomach trouble and indigestion for some time, and nothing that I ate agreed with me. I was very nervous and experienced a continual feeling of uneasiness and fear. I took medicine from the doctor, but it did me no good.

"I found in one of your Peruna books a description of my symptoms. I then wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice. He said I had catarrh of the stomach. I took Peruna and Manalin and followed his directions and can now say that I feel as well as I ever did.

"I hope that all who are afflicted with the same symptoms will take Peruna, as it has certainly cured me."

The above is only one of hundreds who have written similar letters to Dr. Hartman. Just one such case as this entitles Peruna to the candid consideration of every one similarly afflicted. If this be true of the testimony of one person what ought to be the testimony of hundreds, yes thousands, of honest, sincere people. We have in our files a great many other testimonials.

There was so much ceremony connected with a church cornerstone laying in New York city a few weeks ago that the moving picture machine man felt warranted to take a couple of miles of photographs.

These pictures proved to be very good, and large crowds were delighted with the exact reproduction of the dedicatory exercises.

"I like the moving pictures better than I did the original service," confessed a prominent member of the congregation.

"You do," gasped a devout elder. "I'm surely pained to hear you say so. Why should you prefer the pictures?"

"Because the picture man," answered the prominent member, pleasantly, "cut out all the sermons."

PALE, WEAK PEOPLE

MADE STRONG AND ENERGETIC BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

General Breakdown Caused by Deficient Blood Quickly Corrected by This Tonic Remedy.

A feeling of general weakness, poor appetite, loss of breath after the slightest exercise and broken sleep are some of the symptoms of general debility. You may think that they have no relation to each other and that you will worry along, hoping all the time to feel better soon. This is a mistake, for every one of the symptoms is caused by bad blood, which must be made pure and new before health will be restored again. A tonic treatment is necessary and for this purpose there is no better remedy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mr. J. G. Havey, of 95 Willow St., Chelsea, Mass., says: "I was sick for a number of years from general debility and indigestion. I was never free from stomach trouble and my nerves were so shattered that the least excitement unfitted me for any serious work. My sleep was restless on account of terrible pains in the small of my back. These pains would sometimes last for a month or two. My sight grew weak, there seeming to be a blur constantly before my eyes. I couldn't concentrate my mind on my work, and the attempt to do so completely exhausted me.

"I was finally forced to give up a position I had held for twenty-eight years. After trying several medicines without help, I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and gave them a trial. They made me feel so much better and so much stronger that I started in business for myself here in Chelsea. I have never had a return of my former sickness and cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an excellent nerve and blood tonic."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have long been recognized as an excellent tonic remedy in cases of indigestion and general debility, where the stomach and other organs of the body are weakened and disordered simply through lack of proper nourishment. They have also been especially successful in curing anaemia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers.

A pamphlet on "Diseases of the Blood" and a copy of our diet book will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

SHED PROTECTION FOR BARN.

Floor Joists Extended Six Feet Beyond Sides of Barn to Support Roof.

An Iowa correspondent sends a sketch of his method of attaching a shed roof to the side of his barn in such a way that it protects the doors and enables the owner to pass from one door to another without being obliged to expose himself unduly to severe weather, says Prairie Farmer. When the barn was built the correspondent says that he had the floor joists extended six feet on the outside of the barn so as to enable him to erect this shed roof, as shown in the illustration. Rafters were used to connect the outer end of this joist with the siding so as to permit a half pitch roof. He is well pleased with the idea.

BETTER HIGHWAYS.

The Use of Tar and Oil in Road Improvement.

In all parts of the civilized world men are testing various materials that can be used in road improvement. In most countries the matter of road dust is something that excites the concern of people. It is one of the great inconveniences of living in the country. In the United States the country roads are all wide and all have more soil uncovered by verdure than in perhaps any other country. These wide roads give a large surface for dust production and in some localities the dust blows in clouds from the roads, till the verdure is anything but green. It gets into the houses and permeates every nook. To get rid of this nuisance is a task worthy of our best thought.

Some road experiments have been in progress in the neighborhood of Jackson, Tenn. Most of the tests were made on roads in the city, but some also on the neighboring country roads. The tar was applied during hot weather to the repaired, cleaned and thoroughly dried surfaces of roads in and near the city. The tar was kept at a temperature of 200 degrees while being conveyed over the roads in a tank wagon, from which it was distributed over the road surface by a hose with a special nozzle and spread evenly in a thin layer by laborers using stiff brooms. The tar was absorbed by the road in eight or ten hours, after which a light coat of sand or screenings was evenly spread over the surface and the road rolled by a steam roller. The average amount of tar used per square yard was 45 hundredths of a gallon. The labor cost less than one-tenth of a cent per square yard. These roads stood well for at least seven months, says Farmers' Review. The tar surrounded the stones and gravel and formed a hard surface about one to two inches in thickness.

In other places some experiments have been made with oil and tar, both of which are fairly good under right conditions. On the dusty country highway, however, the oil is too light for permanent results, but tar proves to be very effective wherever used.

BEANS AND CORN FEED.

It Makes an Excellent Combination to Feed the Pigs.

This is an excellent combination in pig feeding. Beans strong in protein and corn in fat. Young hogs thrive rapidly on such a combination. Prof. Shaw has this suggestion as to the preparation and feeding of beans. He says:

"Beans can be fed to swine only in the cooked form. The pig seems to be unable to utilize beans which are at all hard or firm, even though they have been boiled for some time, hence it is very essential that they be thoroughly cooked. To supply a single feed of half-cooked beans to a pen of hogs, robs them of their apetites and relish for their food, if indeed it does not put them off feed. The cooking should be conducted in an even more careful manner than it would be in preparing them for human food. It will materially shorten the cooking period and give better results, if the beans are soaked an hour or two, or better, over night, before the cooking proper is begun.

"Pails used should be rinsed after each feeding and especial care should be taken to clean the kettle or barrel after each cooking and not allow sour or moldy material to collect about the food receptacle. More than one case of supposed hog cholera has been traced to ignorant or careless neglect in allowing old swill to accumulate in a barrel instead of emptying the barrel each time before the new material is dumped into it."

Harrowing the Corn.

It won't hurt the corn to harrow it until it is three or four inches high, that is, if too much trash or corn stalks have not been left in the ground.

THE NEW INSURANCE AGENT.

He Comes in With the New Law—Paul Morton on His Opportunity.

The new insurance law of the State of New York has opened up a promising field for both men and women with brains and energy in the sale of life insurance. The law now provides standard forms of policies, each of which practically bears the hall mark of the State of New York, and this new order of things has established the sale of life insurance on a correct basis.

The prohibition against rebating and extravagant allowances to agents has driven out of the business the old type of insurance agent, who in many cases virtually bought business, with large rebates, instead of selling it. His place is being taken by professors, lawyers, school teachers of both sexes, and others, who find that being a life insurance agent under the new system offers greater reward than their previous vocations. The law has reduced commissions but all of the commission now goes to the agent. Life insurance is something that everyone needs and under the present system its sale is being conducted with becoming dignity and propriety.

Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has taken the lead in building up an agency organization that is in keeping with the demands of public sentiment, and the standard he has set for his company. He says: "We want new agents, both men and women, but none except energetic, able and truthful people need apply. For such there is a splendid opportunity."

Mr. Morton's policy of injecting new and vigorous blood into the agency force of the Society is meeting with success in all parts of the country.

"Tainted Money" No New Thing.

"'Nay, nay, nay!' said the archbishop, waving a white, jeweled hand as the chief began to divulge some of his larger plans. 'Tell me not of thy wicked schemes! Thy methods I must condemn utterly, but if thou bringest me the money, well, I can at least see to it that it be not used for bad purposes. And speaking of money, we need for the walls of the apse a hundred bags of gold. Dost think thou couldst manage it?'

"'Ay,' said the Gentle Robber, and that night he despoiled nine men, killing three that resisted longest, for he was a great lover of holy church, and a devout believer, nor could she ask of him any service that he would not perform."—"The Gentle Robber," in McClure's.

Ghosts of Dead Lakes.

In the great basin between the Rockies and the Sierra Nevadas lie the ghosts of many dead lakes. Rivers still flow down to the dry edge of these one-time great reservoirs and are licked up by evaporation and the chinook winds. Of all the lakes that once lay there, only Great Salt Lake, Lake Tahoe and Bear Lake are left. The Southern Pacific rolls for 165 miles across the bed of what was once Lake Lahontan, and the passengers gazing idly from the windows may see the terraces and wrinkles in the crust of the fossil lake which nature robbed and defrauded of its crystal treasures ages ago.—Exchange.

Return of the Prodigal.

"I do play in tough luck sometimes," declared the impecunious girl. "Last night, you remember how it rained. I happened to be in the neighborhood of some friends of mine whom I had not seen since the last hard rain. I concluded to call. Before they asked me in they grabbed the umbrella I carried, hurried across the room with it, placed it in a closet there and locked the door on it. "Thank heaven!" they cried. "At last! Our long lost umbrella!"

Sunshine the Great Disinfectant.

Let plenty of sunshine into your house. Sunshine is the greatest of disinfectants. It will also discourage "bugs" of all kinds, great and small. No room is fit to inhabit if the sun doesn't shine full into it for a couple of hours daily. Carpets and hangings? Yes, of course it will fade them. If you value your carpets and hangings more than the health of yourself and family by all means keep out the sun.

DR. TALKS OF FOOD

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment, a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork, I suffered several yea s with malnutriton, palpitation of the heart, and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." One Hundred Years Ago.

Gen. Zebulon Pike was discovering the peak that bears his name. "The reason why I know I'm the first white man that ever saw it," he said, "is that it hasn't got any patent medicine signs on it." Regretting that he couldn't spare the time to stop and discover the gold that lay hidden all around him, he took a parting look at the snowy summit of the peak and resumed his toilsome march.

Seven Billion Gallons of Milk.

The 7,500,000,000 gallons of commercial milk annually consumed represents an enormous white river pouring across the U. S. in every direction and yet few people realize that it is fast becoming a veritable river Styx, for it is so disease laden that millions of people are day-by-day drinking disease in various forms from this greatest of disease-spreading agents. Chiefest among these diseases is Consumption. Health office reports show that 25% of the Dairy Cows have Bovine Tuberculosis and through the milk and meat are dealing out Consumption to the people at an alarming rate. An effective remedy is recently claimed in the simple feeding Rasawa in small doses to the cattle. The remedy is cheap and a few cents worth procured at any Drug Store will render a cow entirely immune is the claim made in a free booklet issued by The Mutual Mercantile Co., Cleveland, O. "Whiskers."

"Whiskers" was a word formerly used to designate the hair on the upper lip. Scott more than once speaks of "whiskers on the upper lip" and so does Defoe in "Robinson Crusoe." Johnson defined a "whisker" as the hair growing on the upper lip or cheek unshaven; a mustachio." It seems to have taken its name from a fancied resemblance to a small brush, to "whisk" properly meaning to sweep, and a "whisker" having been a particular kind of feather brush—also, in the slang of a former time, a switch or rod. In the seventeenth century a "whisker" signified among other things a brazen lie, a "whopper."

BABY ITCHED TERRIBLY.

Face and Neck Covered with Inflamed Skin—Doctors No Avail—Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

"My baby's face and neck were covered with itching skin similar to eczema, and she suffered terribly for over a year. I took her to a number of doctors, and also to different colleges, to no avail. Then Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me by Miss G—. I did not use it at first, as I had tried so many other remedies without any favorable results. At last I tried Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and to my surprise noticed an improvement. After using three boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, together with the Soap and Pills, I am pleased to say she is altogether a different child and the picture of health. Mrs. A. C. Brestlin, 171 N. WOMEN SUFFER
Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance.
How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong?
The cause may be easily traced to some feminine derangement which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, dragging sensations, flatulency, nervousness, and sleeplessness.
These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded, a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result. The best remedy for all these symptoms is made from native roots and herbs. No other medicine in the country has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.
Miss J. F. Walsh, of 328 W. 36th St., New York City, writes:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of inestimable value in restoring my health. I suffered from female illness which caused dreadful headaches, dizziness, and dull pains in my back, but your medicine soon brought about a change in my general condition, built me up and made me perfectly well."
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints, such as Backache, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and organic diseases. It is invaluable in preparing for child-birth and during the Change of Life. It cures Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, and invigorates the whole system.

WYSIDE.

The Liars Club met in Batchelder's hen house as was ordered. It was decided not to meet there again, because the fowls were too fat and tempting—it may cause some of the older members not to be strictly honest. One member reported that he caught seven trout out of one hole in a small stream. The smallest trout measured eleven inches and the largest one sixteen inches. There was a howl of disgust and Pap Blodget doubted the story, but proof was furnished and it had to be recorded as gospel truth. A committee was appointed to wait on the county commissioners and request them to place sewer pipe in the woods for the pheasants to drum on, as there is not a log within ten miles of Grove big enough to hold an English sparrow. The contribution hat was passed to defray the expenses. Seven cents was collected the first time around. It is reported that the wood peckers now come for milles around to peck at the smoke stack in Barclay's pack mill—no trees fit for their use. The club adjourned to meet at the lath shed next Saturday night at 10:42, rain or snow.
